Andrew: Thanks for your note and apologies for the delay. Next week I should be able to get you AR's initial installment of data and proposed dates for an April meeting. Rich

Rich,

Thank you again for coming out in December to discuss the Anaconda Yerington site. I hope to follow up with you regarding the preliminary Rorschach test description (as we came to discuss) of ARC's view of the existing data that would suggest significant Arimetco contributions to groundwater contamination. It was my understanding that EPA would be looking for this mid-January, although Ms. Gallery continued suggest early February. Would you be able advise on when we may expect to receive a brief statement. Thereafter, we anticipate an April meeting to discuss data interpretations in more detail, with more extensive reports or opinions to be drafted later in the year. If you have dates in mind for April, please also let me know.
